Background: Grade posting and Family Education Rights and Privacy Act

It is a violation of the federal Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) to publicly post student grades that are identified by the student's name, institutional student identification number, or social security number without first having obtained the student's written permission. This regulation applies to Web sites and grade sheets left with office staff as well as to the more traditional posting sites such as bulletin boards and office doors.

Please sign only one of the following two options. If both are signed, we will default to option one. Your choice of options has absolutely no effect on your grade.
